I ask myself why is our answer to the Israelis' firing of the rocket launchers and the violent bulldozing of our homes, communities and schools, not so much a response as an extension of the same occupation regime? I'm not a believer in conspiracy theories. I don't believe that the Mossad or CIA, or anyone else, is running our lives, or exporting Middle Eastern crises around the world. But something smells real fishy here. In more than one way. First, all the "peace" parties, all the NGOs, all the moderate religious clerics and the school teachers and the teachers' unions, are running away from the Palestinian issue. Settlements, Jerusalem, "refugees", "occupied territories" is just too much to take on. Worse, they have also not succeeded in building a society that is peaceful and tolerant, because Israeli society is still made up of young settlers, the orthodox rabbis of all sects, and the settlers who are really running things. So forget it, these national entities don't even exist in our minds. At the same time, "there is no state solution" has been articulated in a phrase that has become almost institutionalised. So forget it, this is the only solution offered by the "moderate" parties, including those on the Right wing. They don't really care that much. So forget it, we've had a right- 1cb139a0ed
