It is a game in which you play as a leader and apprentice of the Elden Lords. First, you must train the apprentices of the tribe to become a warrior and eventually become the Elden Lord, which can be done by getting help from your tribe, and then you must be diligent in the service of the Elden Ring. The service of the Elden Ring requires great skills and strength, and if your skills and strength are not adequate, you will not receive the service of the Elden Ring. "I'm a little surprised at the amount of detail available for Iron Banner. It's really well-developed compared to other fantasy games I've played." -- Tim Rogers, The Escapist " It brings together the action, story, and dialogue in a unique way that makes the players want to talk about it." -- Brandon Wojcik, Kotaku "I'm impressed with how fully-featured the game is. I've always been a sucker for in-depth RPGs with nice voice acting, and for the most part, Ragnarok Online doesn't disappoint." -- Chris Reed, MetalSucks "Ragnarok Online is a game you have to see to believe." -- Jonathan Green, X-Play4 MP), 110 dB

(with zero blanking), and 120 dB (without zero blanking), respectively (for coverage of the required operating range of the axial scanners). The peak-to-peak amplitude of the RF signals generated by the axial scanning system is designed to be 50 dB less than the axial scanner output RF signals for an effective dynamic range of 120 dB. Furthermore, the amplitude of the RF signal generated by the axial scanning system should be less than the amplitude of the RF signal generated by the reference scanner, both with respect to the peak-to-peak amplitude and the output level. For example, the typical peak-to-peak amplitude of the RF signal generated by a typical commercially available LC axial scanner is about 120 dB, the peak-to-peak amplitude of the RF signal generated by the reference scanner may be equal to or less than 90 dB, and the peak-to-peak amplitude of the RF signal generated by the axial scanning system should be less than 80 dB. In the specific embodiment illustrated in FIG. 4, a first signal generator SEG-2 generates a first signal fBASE-T2 that transmits the axial scan range data for the base band RF
