noreply@stefanwirlich.com I am a self employed Electronics Engineer with many years experience in Digital Electronics, Embedded Systems, and Software, For over 25 years I've designed embedded microcontrollers and develop web-based application for both commercial and private customers. INTRODUCTION Oscar is a simple to use tool especially designed for users that, at some point, need to send MIDI data through the serial port. The plugin uses a receiver and a transmitter to create the connection. Oscar is free of charge and can be downloaded from the following website: VERSION INFORMATION VERSION NAME: Oscar VERSION VERSION: 0.1 RELEASE DATE: 1.11.2018 Physical distribution firm Mawson-McLaren Australia Pty Ltd has asked the Australian Office of Film, Television and Radio Classification to classify the work on the grounds that it encourages the broader consumption of cannabis and that the language of the title does not give users adequate information about the nature of the work. The board said it considered the title not to be objectionable under s 264.1, which deals with derogatory references to offences. But it was concerned about s 264.7, which deals with references that appear to endorse offences, that is that the work might "encourage the commission of offences". "In this case, the work could be understood to be an endorsement of the consumption of cannabis, as only adults are expected to consume it," the board said. You can't miss the list of host's supported by the tool.Q: Recording built in webcam microphone on iPhone in real time I have a chat application in which users can video call each other. I would like to record the microphone on the iphone 4 via the built in webcam and save it in some sort of database to show the last 10-30 seconds. I would think I would use the AVCaptureMovieFileOutput and possibly the UIMovieRecorder I was thinking of making the sound from the built in microphone, then doing some sort of signal processing to get the microphone image, but am not sure how I could do it. I am wondering if
