the next button. The problem is I don't know how to do it. The website shows the code as follow and it also is described here. if (x == 2) { UIAlertView *alert = [[UIAlertView alloc]

Q: Unique identifier to transfer files When people transfer files using ftp or ssh, are they using an unique identifier for the file? For example when I transfer a file using ftp to another computer (or through the network), do they use a unique identifier for the file? A: Transferring files using FTP uses one of the following services; FTP SFTP HFTPS The more secure method of file transfer is using SSH. However, you can still have people with access to your file transfer account (either from a legit need or not) exploit that to execute harmful code or download files. [In general, you can tell if you've used a unique identifier to transfer a file by the fact that its name is unique. If the file is not unique, there might be other ways of telling its contents apart. [Just as you can with a directory, you can tell if a file has been renamed by simply trying to read the contents. If it's different, then you know it has been changed, if not, then it's the same as the original. [30 March 2011 India, the US have discussed ways to improve bilateral ties. "There has been a very open exchange of views on what we do. With respect to India, there were a number of big issues about how we can move towards a stronger, deeper relationship," he told reporters when asked to comment on the meeting between Goyal and Hormats.
