Round 2.Smaller firms get more money for environmental projects A new study from the City of London Corporation shows that environmental schemes in London's smaller offices and shops have been receiving double the rate of rate of subsidy as the bigger firms. The new 'Small firms versus big firms: A financial case for conservation finance', carried out by the London Borough of Hackney and London Councils, says that, last year, £354.7m was given to firms that had to spend at least 30% of their turnover on environmental projects; with 11,600 small firms receiving £3.1bn of this. The study compares the rates of subsidy received by 6d1f23a050
