(CBTs) for agoraphobia. Agoraphobia is a common, disabling, chronic, illness that is prone to relapse, which results in a significant loss of function and personal suffering. It is often difficult to predict which agoraphobic patients will benefit from cognitive behavioural treatments (CBTs). This is because the relationship between anxiety, cognitions and behaviour is complex, and many patients seek a variety of alternative medical and psychological treatments before attempting CBTs. This is a critical time in the patient's clinical course, as suffering and disability are high, and because the efficacy of many alternative treatments is uncertain. However, CBT is highly effective when delivered in a systematic, explicit, structured way, and when it is perceived by the patient to be worthwhile. CBTs utilise systematic desensitisation with in vivo exposure and cognitive restructuring as major components, and can be modified to suit individual needs and strengths. These procedures can be taught to patients, who then need only to practise them in the future. Most outcome studies have found CBT to be superior to placebo, often by more than 50%, although it is not a panacea, and patients do relapse. Failed Error Codes These are errors and warnings that an external application might throw when performing an operation. This means that they are not directly related to a disconnected backup or restore session. However, they are useful to understand why a non-functional operation may have failed, and how to handle them. If you choose to ignore such errors, then it is your responsibility to handle any errors that occur during the backup or restore operations. The following errors and warnings can be thrown by failed operation in Dynamics AX 2012: AXF0849: Unable to perform a backup operation because an assembly with the same name was already loaded. (Error Code 43149) AXF0848: An attempt was made to use a backup from a snapshot backup to a backup on a different snapshot. (Error Code 43148) AXF0844: The backup operation was canceled by the user. (Error Code 43144) AX 6d1f23a050
