copy/create/burn/unlock iso files, including the multimedia iso (64/32-bit and larger), the cd/dvd-video, and the multisession (floppy-based) iso files. it can also create/extract/create bootable windows (from both windows and linux) installer images. i've created two virtual machines on windows server 2012 r2, one with windows 8.1 pro and the other windows server 2019 datacenter. the creation of the virtual machines is made on the virtual machine microsoft hyper-v. as it turns out, the virtual machines can be created directly on the virtual machine microsoft hyper-v with the vmware converter application. the vm conversion is triggered only when a virtual machine is shut down and then powered on again later. do not forget to extend your shutdown virtual machine during the conversion. 5ec8ef588b
