Eset-PureFix-v3.0.0.1.cracked.The present invention relates to a method of producing a hot-rolled blank with a vertical center line from a hot-rolled strip blank. In the production of a hot-rolled blank with a vertical center line, typically an upsetting operation is performed with a maximum forming depth of about 2 mm. An example of this type of hot-rolled blank is a hollow form that is used, for example, for producing a front end portion of a vehicle body. In a known upsetting method (a bottom-up method), the hot-rolled blank is initially shaped in a horizontal shaping mill, and subsequently an upsetting is performed by a pair of upper and lower upsetting rollers. In a known upsetting method (a top-down method), the hot-rolled blank is initially shaped in a vertical shaping mill, and subsequently the hot-rolled blank is placed in a top-down upsetting device. A hollow form is formed by upsetting the hot-rolled blank from the top. Furthermore, in another known upsetting method, both the bottom-up method and the top-down method are combined. In this upsetting method, shaping is initially performed in a horizontal shaping mill, and subsequently the hot-rolled blank is placed in a top-down upsetting device. The hot-rolled blank is subsequently shaped in a vertical shaping mill, and the shape of the hot-rolled blank in the vertical shaping mill is transferred to the hot-rolled blank in the top-down upsetting device. For example, JP-A-11-280023 discloses a production method of a hot-rolled blank with a vertical center line in which the top-down upsetting is used. In the top-down upsetting, the hot-rolled blank is rolled from the center of the hot-rolled blank by a bottom-up upset, and then an upset is performed by a top-down upset. In the hot-rolled blank with a vertical center line that is formed by the top-down upsetting, a centerline of the hot-rolled blank includes a vertical center line. However, the center
